FAMED BARITONE OF AUSTRALIA TO PLAY AT BIJOU

Andrew Kirk, famed Australian baritone, will provide the animated feature at the Bijou theater tonight following the closing last night of the engagement of Wright & Dietrich, Brown & Lawson and the Helen Leach Wallin Trio. Kirk has a novelty stunt which has been heard and seen only in New York and Australia. Especially selected pictures are thrown on the screen and Kirk tells the story of the action in song. Australian papers say that because of Kirk's splendid voice and the nature of the pictures it is a range from grand opera to light opera in tabloid form.

The moving pictures of the recent Mid-Pacific Carnival are proving a big drawing card. Last night they were viewed by Mayor Lane and Supervisors Hallager and Arnold and all the city officials declared steps should be taken to send the film in some form to the mainland as a promotion feature showing Honolulu in February.

The three vaudeville teams who closed their engagement last night were given splendid sendoffs. Especially warm was the aloha given to Wright & Dietrich. Leis and a ukelele went over the footlights to the popular entertainers. Wright made a clever curtain call speech in which he intimated he and his wife would return to Honolulu to live and received wild applause.

DAYS OF '49 PORTRAYED IN EMPIRE FILM

A dramatic achievement vividly depicting a romance of the mountains in the stirring days of a western gold rush, "The Bottled Spider," which will be presented at the Empire theater today, has become an established classic. The cast is one that could hardly be improved upon. It was picked by the author-producer, Francis Montgomery, under whose personal direction the production was made. Theodore Roberts has one of the principal roles.

Walter Van and Lillian Walker play leading parts in the two-reel comedy, "Cutey's Wife." The production is a finely developed farce which gives ample scope for the fun-making process of a clever staff of moving picture comedians. Through a misunderstanding Cutey weds Betty, a runaway boarding school girl, instead of an aspiring and vivacious actress. The manner in which they finally accept each other makes a capital ending to an interesting and logical farce comedy. The picture is correctly staged and contains some excellent photography.

Another Keystone comedy, with the famous police in full pursuit will be featured at the Empire today in the presentation of "The Thief Catcher." Roscoe Arbuckle is one of the stars seen in this laughable film.

LOVERS OF RARE DICKENS CHARM AT YE LIBERTY

The book-worms still flock to Ye Liberty. There were school teachers—there were the staid old fogies—there were the ambitious young upstarts—all bent upon seeing the adaptation of that grand old story, "The Chimes," by Charles Dickens, to the movie screen, and none was disappointed, for every character was so vividly portrayed, true to the pen of the author, that their satisfaction was complete.

The play deals with the differences between the rich and the poor—a subject that will never grow old, and Charles Dickens has probably written more on the topic than any other author, and having lived in the heart of the suffering poor in England, he draws his picture complete from both sides of the question. Tom Terris, who plays the part of old Trotty Veck, shows remarkable talent in this difficult role.

TATTOO LADY CAN GO ON EXHIBITING, COURT DECLARES

The tattooed woman who has been displaying her charms in a storeroom on King street for a charge of 25 cents per look, gave a private exhibition yesterday morning to a distinguished audience of one, consisting of Circuit Judge William L. Whitney. The exhibition took place in the judge's chamber at the judiciary building, the only other person present being the woman's husband.

The jurist gazed upon the purple snakes, blood-red roses, full-figured ships, flags of many nations and a recognizable portrait of Theodore Roosevelt, which adorn the lady's torso and limbs and eventually reached the conclusion that it was an artistic display in India ink. Later in the day at another exhibition staged in his chamber, the judge examined the two midgets who, with the tattooed woman, comprise the itinerant show. Convinced that the boys are no longer juveniles he decided that the show should be permitted to continue, though warning the man in charge that youngsters under 18 years of age should not be permitted to see the woman. The "manager" of the exhibition informed the court that he is the woman's husband and father of the boys, who he proved documentary evidence, have been working as side-show attractions at least four or five years.

The case was brought to Judge Whitney's attention Thursday on at least half a dozen complaints, various persons who had seen the exhibit declaring it was indecent and that the boys were still of school age. The show was stopped at Judge Whitney's instigation Thursday, but after investigating it thoroughly yesterday he allowed it to proceed.
